

David Hartman, 13, feels a model spider web at the "Touch-and-Learn" museum.

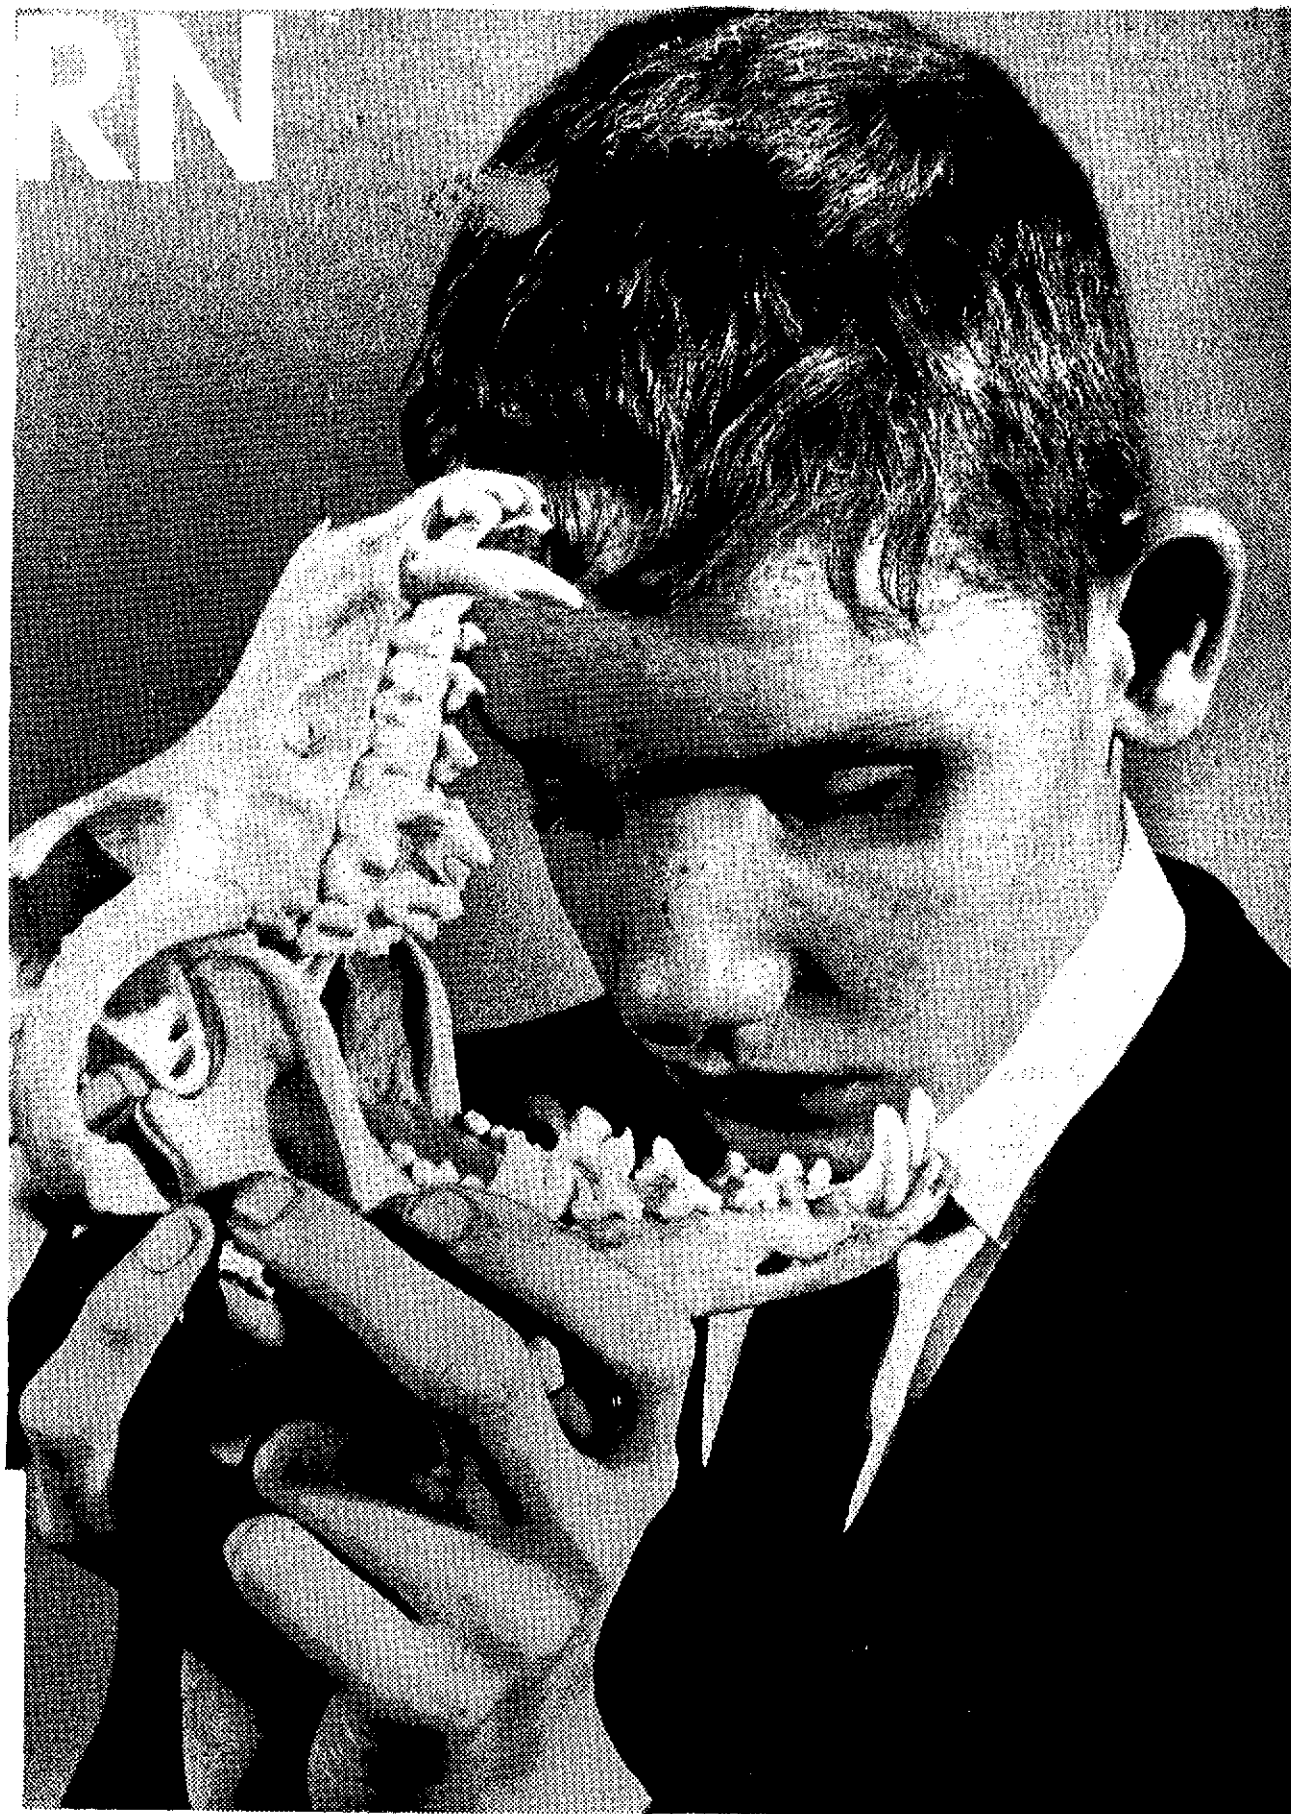

How can you show a blind child the intricate pattern of a spider web? How can you explain to him the true size of an elephant? How do you teach him how an engine works—what a map is—what the seal of the United States looks like?

Mrs. Elizabeth D. Freund has spent a lifetime thinking about these problems. Her family has been associated with Philadelphia's Overbrook School for the Blind for 133 years. Six years ago she told a class of younger students at Overbrook a story about a mouse. It was a funny story and the children laughed at the rhymes and jingles—but when asked how big they thought a mouse was, the children's hands indicated sizes ranging from an inch to five feet.

Mrs. Freund thought she had a solution. With the help of many organizations and people (including President Johnson, who sent a stuffed armadillo) she opened a Tactile Learning Center at Overbrook. It is a "Touch-and-Learn" museum, full of objects which the children can handle and gain knowledge from. With displays of animals, engines, industries, boats, buildings, and many other things, the museum gives blind children experiences of things that other children can learn about by seeing them.

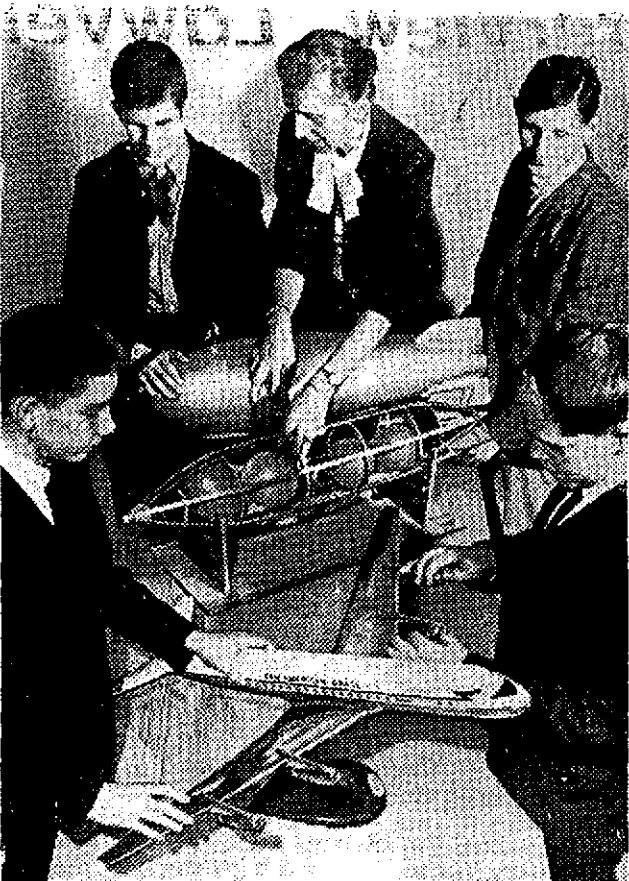

Now, if you ask a child at Overbrook how big a mouse is, he knows—he has felt one.

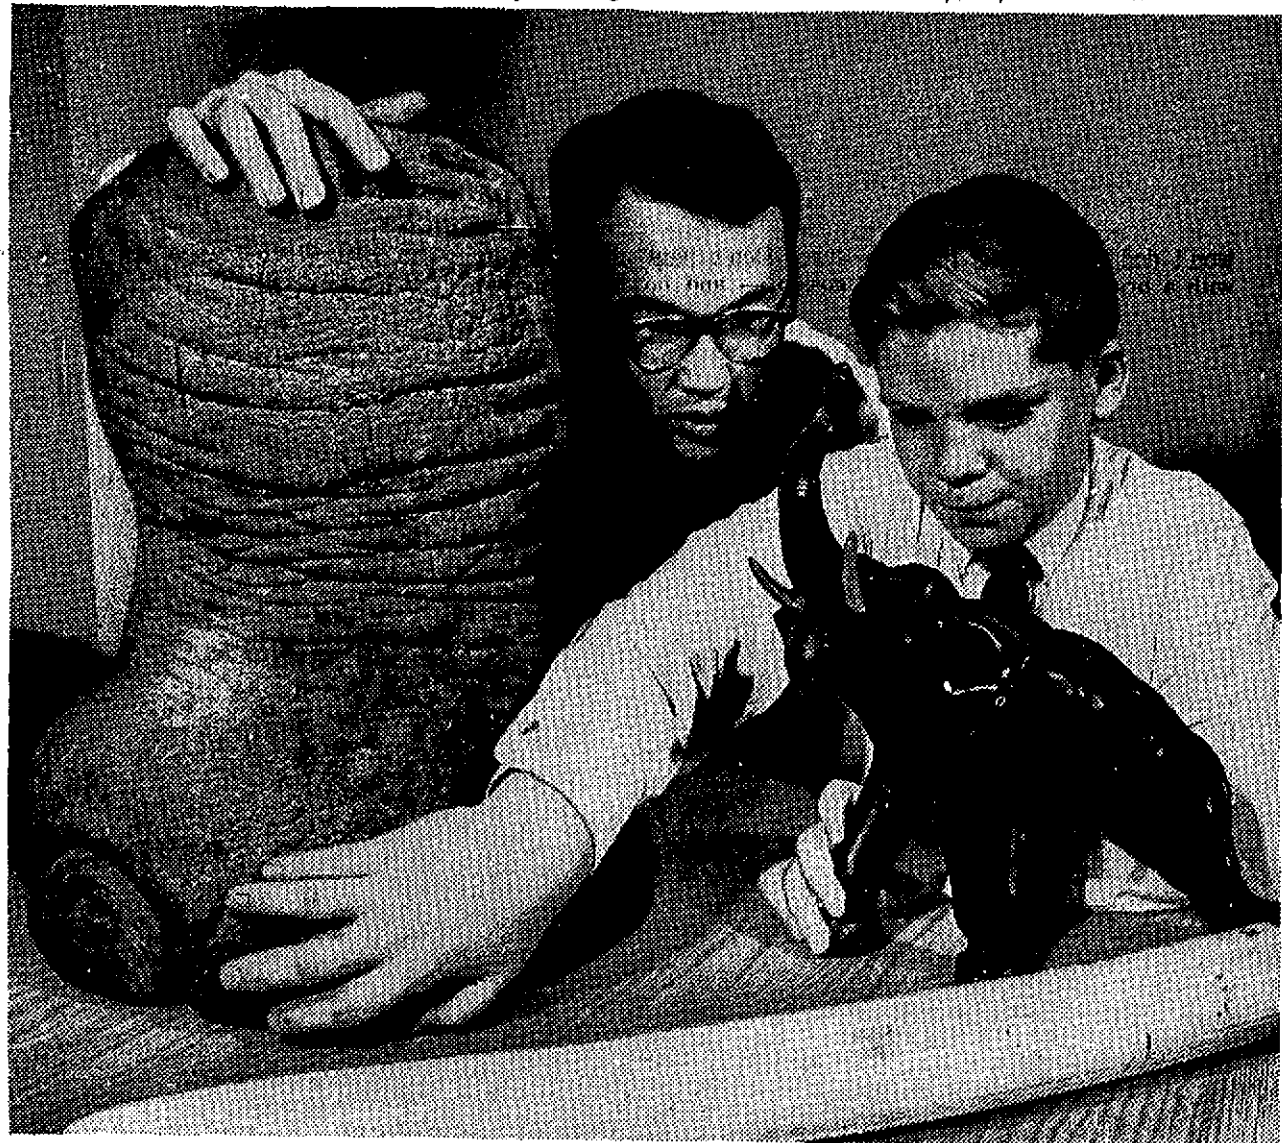

A dog's skull is one of many zoological exhibits—Alan Hawk, 19, studies it.

Dear Helen: I am nearly 12 but I think I'm old enough to tell you how wrong you are about pierced ears. Who says it's dangerous to use the needle and ice cube? A doctor soaks you for $5.00. And can you tell me any good reason (besides infection) why a girl shouldn't have her ears pierced? My mother is sensible and allowed it. She lets me wear the dangly type if they aren't a couple of inches long or something.

"Fake" earrings are stupid, and maybe YOU can't see any good reason to get your ears pierced, but I can. I lost five pair of earrings before I got sensible — 14 K. gold too!

I suppose you think I'm too young to wear them. I think you must be very old-fashioned. And I am not a stupid, tuft idiot which you may think. — Tina

Dear Tina: Now why would I think that? But your mother... Tell me, has she made you an appointment with the "switch doctor" — for a wig? — H.

Dear Helen: Three of my girl friends and I are planning to spend next summer at the shore. We have a good chaperone which is our first problem solved. Our second: a car, is getting solved. Two of us will have our licenses by then (we're almost 16) and I plan to save up enough money with after-school jobs to buy an old car.

Tuesday, January 18.
The Hope Division of Licensed Practical Nurses will meet Tuesday, January 18 at 6:30 in the dining room of the Memorial Hospital. Dr. Jim Martindale will be the speaker.

The Friendship Sunday School Class of the First Baptist Church will have its monthly meeting in the home of Mrs. Herbert Rogers at 7:30. All members and associates are urged to attend.

The DeAnn Lilac Garden Club will meet at 2 p.m. Tuesday, January 18 in the home of Mrs. J. C. Burke with Mrs. Jewel Burke, co-hostess. Members are asked to bring asymmetrical all-green arrangements using a bird as an accessory. Dr. Herbert Rogers will be the guest speaker and "Birds" will be his topic.

Wednesday, January 19.
The Brookwood P T A Study Group will meet in the home of Mrs. Charles Stone Wednesday the 18th from 2 to 3 p.m. The discussion will be concerning the traffic problems on Spruce and 5th Streets. Local officer Carl Ward will be guest of the group.

The John Cain Chapter, DAR, will have a business meeting at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, January 19 at the Heritage House. Delegates to Conference will be elected, and all reports will be due. Lunch will be served at noon. Hostesses will be Mrs. Paul Klipsch, Mrs. John Keck, and Mrs. J. A. Wilson. Members are asked to notify Mrs. Klipsch by Monday, January 17 if they plan to attend.

Complicated Play Vs. Easy Way

By JACOBY & SON
1965 Vanderbilt Cup Winners
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Here is a really controversial hand from the International team trials. Every West player opened with one club. North invariably overcalled with one heart; South tried one spade. West rebid two clubs. North raised to two spades and whether or not East bid three diamonds, South would close the bidding at four spades.

West always started the defense with three rounds of clubs. East ruffed the third club, whereupon South would overruff and take stock of the situation.

He would have to lose the ace of spades in any event and would need to be able to discard two diamonds on dummy's hearts.

The simple play would be to take a heart finesse. This play would succeed if West had started with either three hearts or four hearts to the king.

The complicated play would be to try to ruff out the king of hearts by playing the ace of hearts. This play would succeed if either opponent had started with three hearts to the king.

Mathematically the plays are equal. In practice the simple play worked. The complicated play failed when it turned out that West had those four hearts headed by the king.

To show how even the play was, six pairs of the nine did reach four spades and three made the hand by the simple play while three went down with the complicated play.

The other three stopped at three spades and all made exactly three. There was a good reason for this. Any declarer who lost the heart finesse would go down at three. The play of the heart ace first would ensure the part-score contract.

Getting a lawyer is like getting a doctor, according to a member of the bar.

With the average family expected to move at least once every five years, the problem of selecting a competent professional in a strange community faces millions.

Interview' Lawyer When New to You

According to Joseph Kelner, president of the American Trial Lawyers Association, an individual wants an attorney or doctor who is capable and thorough.

"It is foolish to walk into a lawyer's office off the street," Kelner says. When in need of legal advice ask others in the community to recommend an attorney they find satisfactory or one who has a good reputation for aiding his clients.

Another logical step is to ask the local bar association for help. The person describes his needs to the association which in turn will recommend more than one attorney in the community qualified to handle the problem.

Many may hesitate to question a lawyer before retaining him, Kelner points out, but this is a wise step. Talk with an attorney first, he says. When doing this look for a person with dignity and sincerity and also ask how much the lawyer has done in the type case involved, such as divorce or real estate. Kelner advises. Although all lawyers are trained for general practice, most specialize today and feel they are more equipped to represent clients best in their specialty.

Don't be embarrassed to ask an attorney to spell out the money terms, either, Kelner says. This clears the air for the lawyer and the client.

In most instances, a potential client may discuss his problem before retaining the lawyer and not be charged. However, if the lawyer is asked for specific advice, then he will charge a fee.

Ask for a specific charge or the basis for charges for an attorney's aid. Fees will vary. In criminal cases, the client may ask for the total charge. Usually this breaks down to a charge before the trial, a per diem charge and additional charge for an appeal, if there is one.

Attorneys will fix a fee for time. There are definite charges for drawing a will, for example, and divorce cases.

In defending certain lawsuits, Kelner points out it is difficult to know when the case will end and time charges for conferences and meetings should be laid out.

To eliminate a misunderstanding or make up for poor memory, request that all financial requirements agreed upon be put in writing. If a lawyer fails to fulfill his obligation, then a client is free to terminate the agreement, but he must pay the fees for the work done.

Why all this concern about how to select an attorney and learn some insight into charges to expect?

Six Rules Simplify Tailoring Clothes

By Mary Brooks Picken

by Mary Brooks Picken
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

You need not shy away from making a tailored coat, jacket or skirt. Follow these six basic rules:

1. Cut carefully according to your pattern.
2. Allow generous seams. They represent structural lines and are the support of your garment.
3. Be sure each piece is cut on the correct grain of the fabric.
4. Avoid joining lengthwise grains to crosswise or bias grains.
5. Press each seam before it joins another.
6. Test your stitch on a scrap of the material.

Stitches too short tighten the seam, too long cheapen the appearance.

The coat pattern shown can be made lined or unlined. If you are a beginner, choose raglan or kimono sleeves. Set-in sleeves require somewhat more skill.

A shows how the shoulder seams are pressed open and stitched. Wide side of presser foot serves as a guide for even stitching.

B To apply the front facing, smooth it out so front edges of both are even. Pin generously. Stitch as shown, a seam distance from the edge. Notice how the edge is clipped so it cannot be tight. Notice also that the facing is cut 1/4-inch in from the edge. This is called "seam blending" and is done to avoid bulk in the front edge.

C shows how the edge of the hem of the patch pockets are stitched. With ends stitched across, corners clipped.

E shows top stitching on the edge—this through both front and facing. Because of the thicknesses of fabric you may need to lengthen your stitch slightly so that it will look the same as for the armhole.

F shows pocket stitched to position on the coat. Notice that you begin stitching at bottom of hem, stitch to the top pivot, turn stitch around the pocket, pivoting at each corner, then again at top of pocket. This extra stitching should be made exactly on the other stitching. It is used for strength rather than show.

Press carefully, remembering rule No. 5. Use a damp press cloth. Lift your iron. Press every part carefully. Place coat on a hanger after it is basted together. This will help it keep its shape.

Cut Decorating Costs

A home handyman can eliminate a costly redecorating problem by covering the walls in the youngster's bedroom with new plastic-surfaced hardboard planks, which are applied right to the old surface with special metal clips and wallboard adhesive. They never need refinishing, and can be kept clean with a damp cloth.

Action by DeGaulle Still Echoes

By JOSEPH E. DYMAN

PARIS (AP)—Three years ago today, Charles de Gaulle slammed the European Common Market door in Britain's face.

The crash is still echoing down diplomatic corridors but there are signs that the French president has — perhaps reluctantly — relented, and now may be ready to welcome the British into the European family.

This assumes that Britain would like to get in. At least one outstanding advocate of European union feels that the real decision lies in London, not Paris.

Some of these advocates link the sound of that slamming door to the crisis within the Common Market, the disputes over Atlantic political planning, the stalemate in the "Kennedy Round" tariff negotiations, and controversy over the shape and role of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Echoes certainly crept up in the recent French presidential election. More than half his countrymen voted against De Gaulle in the initial round, bringing a runoff race. De Gaulle finally won, but his European policies continued to cost him votes.

Late in the campaign — too late, for many voters — De Gaulle began saying that the six-nation Common Market eventually should be extended to other countries.

De Gaulle repeated this theme in his New Year's Eve address to the nation. He said France is ready to resume negotiations on the Common Market's agricultural policy "on conditions which are equitable and reasonable, and with the hope that on such a base other neighbors will join in."

On Nov. 22, De Gaulle received Edward Heath, leader of the British Conservative party, whose nose was caught in that slamming door.

Late Show Sat. at Saenger; Also Sunday and Monday

"THE SONS OF KATIE ELDER," a Hal Wallis production for Paramount release, stars John Wayne, Dean Martin, Earl Holliman and Michael Anderson, Jr. Filmed in Technicolor and Panavision, it opens Sunday at the Saenger Theatre. Based on a story by Talbot Jennings and directed by Henry Hathaway, "Katie Elder" is a dramatic tale of how four brothers attempt to redeem the blackened legacy and reputation of their family name. Martha Hyer has the feminine lead as the only woman in the cast. The screenplay was written by William H. Wright, Allan Weiss and Harry Essex.

TUES-WED SAENGER

As a middle-aged Virginian trying to hold on to her youth, and a Texas ball-player who never quite "made it," Vivien Leigh and Lee Marvin are among the stars of the Stanley Kramer production, "Ship of Fools." Others starred in the Columbia Pictures release based on the Katherine Anne Porter novel are Simone Signoret, Jose Ferrer, Oskar Werner, Elizabeth Ashley, George Segal, Jose Greco, Michael Dunn, Charles Korvin and Heinz Rühmann. Stanley Kramer produced and directed the drama.

... the New Way. "In those days came John the Baptist, preaching... 'Repent.'" A simple statement that means so much. The man who speaks looks strange. His clothing is unattractive, his face unshaven, his body lean from fasting and prayer. But his eye is clear, his voice strong, his spirit challenging. He knows a wonderful secret and would share it. John's first word is, "Repent." Stop working against God and yourself. He appears to be warning... sons and daughters of God, quit living like children of the Devil. Attend Sunday school, worship in church and associate yourself with good.

Johnson had promised in his State of the Union message Wednesday night that "we will respond if others reduce their use of force."

The decrease in Viet Cong activity which he mentioned Thursday began more than a week before the President spoke and administration officials were by no means certain that it had any political significance at all. Should it prove to have such meaning it evidently would be interpreted here to indicate a Viet Cong reaction to Johnson's earlier suspension of the bombing of North Viet Nam targets.

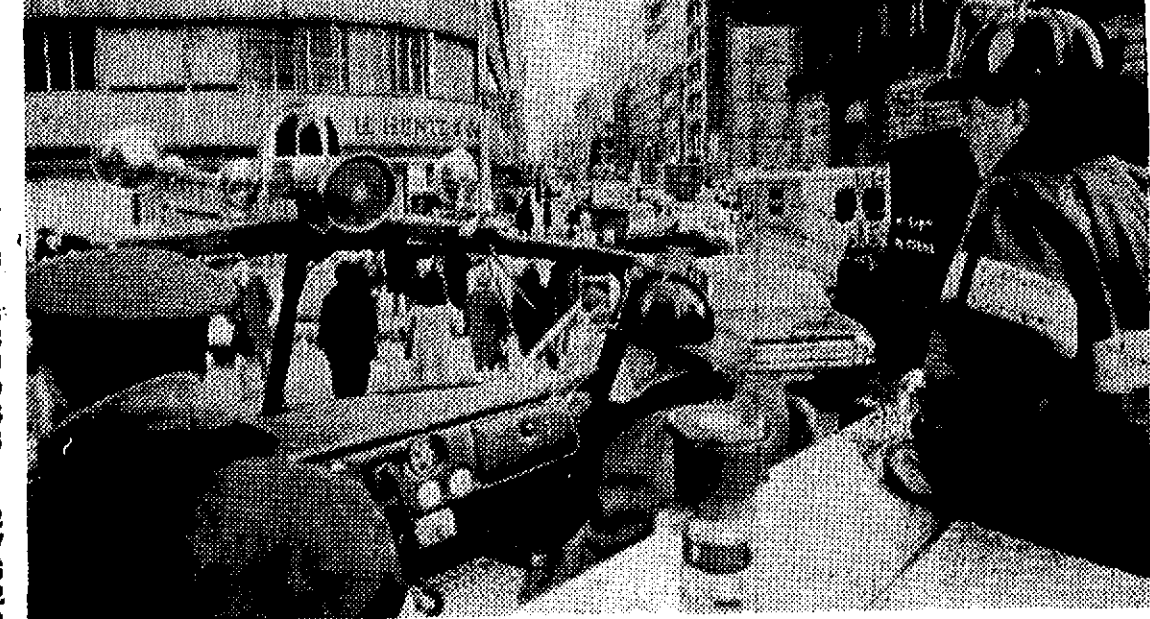

The President also said Thursday in a news conference that he will continue to send special peace envoys to the capitals of other nations and that he will go on seeking peace "as long as I am President."

Administration officials reported, following the President's comment about a decline in Viet Cong activity, that there were 970 Viet Cong incidents in the week of Jan. 2 to 8. In the previous week there were 1,130 incidents initiated by the Viet Cong.

There was thus a drop of 160 incidents in the first week of January as compared with the last week of December, but the level for the first week in January was still above the weekly average of 850 incidents for the last quarter of 1965.

As used by U.S. civilian and military authorities, the word "incident" embraces all kinds of Viet Cong actions from random outbursts of firing or a raid on a peasant family to actual military attacks.

Officials here said that in the first week of January there were 17 military attacks by the Viet Cong but all were below battalion strength. In the last week of December there were 25 military attacks on U.S. and South Vietnamese forces including three of battalion size.

Attempt Made to Kidnap Industrialist

By BOB THOMAS

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Pistols raised, two men crashed into the home of Leonard K. Firestone Thursday night in an apparent attempt to kidnap the wealthy industrialist. Staked-out police killed both with shotgun blasts.

Cal Bailey, 40, was killed instantly as he attempted to rush into the living room of the palatial home. George Scalla, 28, fell wounded on the threshold and died three hours later in the prison ward of General Hospital. They held three guns, but never got a chance to fire a shot.

Police said the men may have planned to ask $2 million in ransom. The deaths ended three weeks of police undercover work, during which the proposed kidnapping was tipped by an undisclosed source. Firestone, 58, was warned to leave the city.

"This has been a very distressing and upsetting thing to have gone through," said the president of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. of Calif. at the home of a friend in San Francisco Thursday night. He complimented the police for a "thorough, intelligent, masterful job."

Capt. John E. Hankins, chief of Beverly Hills detectives, told this sequence of events:

First hint of the kidnap came three weeks ago in connection with a burglary that took place in the jurisdiction of the Los Angeles police. Ten days ago, the tipster disclosed that the intended victim was Firestone, the handsome son of rubber empire founder Harvey S. Firestone.

"I was very much disturbed and concerned," said the industrialist. "I just made up my mind that I would try to work with the police as best I could." Hankins advised him to leave his home on Alpine Drive, a tree-shaded street where millionaires live amid movie stars. Police officers moved in, along with a policewoman who posed as a domestic to answer the door and phone.

Lays passed uneventfully. No unusual phone calls came, no suspicious cars drove by. The identity of the two suspects was known, and they were known to have long records of burglary, robbery and robbery with violence. All attempts to locate them for surveillance failed.

At 6 o'clock Thursday evening the telephone rang. The policewoman, Barbara Ezell, told the male caller that Mr. Firestone could not come to the telephone. The caller hung up.

At 8:20 a. black 1965 Ford, last week to the board of directors. The members of the board elected Riley as mayor.

gazed through the peephole and saw two large men emerge from the car. One wore a Halloween mask over his face and carried a gun in one hand and a sack containing adhesive tape in the other. He was later identified as Bailey.

Scalla wore a hat pulled down on his face and carried a gun in each hand. Both men wore surgical gloves.

Man Convicted of Murder

MALVERN, Ark. (AP) —

Leander Collins, 38, of Malvern, has been convicted of second-degree murder in the death of Orlando Williams last February.

A Hot Spring Circuit Court jury convicted Collins of second-degree murder Thursday. Williams, Collins' father-in-law, was beaten and shot. Judge Henry B. Means will sentence Collins Monday.

Dr. Riley Mayor at Arkadelphia

ARKADELPHIA, Ark. (AP) —

Dr. Bob Riley has been elected mayor of Arkadelphia under the city's new city manager system.

Riley, a political science professor at Ouachita Baptist University was one of seven elected last week to the board of directors. The members of the board elected Riley as mayor.

The Pacific ocean is twice as big as the Atlantic and 20 times the size of the United States. From New Guinea to the mainland of Asia, the floor of the Pacific reveals contours more varied and rugged than anything on land. Some of its island chains are 1,000 miles in length and owe their existence, in part at least, to the tiny animals that build coral reefs.

Russell's Last Request

Bill Russell of the Boston Celtics confesses that for him there are no more personal goals in basketball. He has two more years to go on his current contract, and he plans to play that out and quit. It isn't the physical fatigue that's chasing him out. "It's tough getting ready mentally," he says. "I ask only one more thing out of basketball—another championship."

Commissioner William D. Eckert is giving New York only one more year as the headquarters of baseball. Then he's going to look around for a change of site, probably Chicago.

The question was a natural. Would Lou Saban have quit professional football for the college job at Maryland if he'd been the head coach of the Green Bay Packers or Cleveland Browns, instead of Buffalo? "I'd make the same decision," he said flatly. "I've been thinking about it for the past year and only made up my mind in the last six or seven weeks." Clue to his decision: "I think it's unfair that players make more money than the coach."

It has been three years since the death of Papa John, the famous Dixieland musician from Nashville, Tenn.—also the father of John Gordy, the all-pro offensive guard of the Detroit Lions. And a new album of his music is just now being released.

A television guy corralled Gordy during the NFL Players Association golf tournament and asked John to demonstrate a water shot. As Gordy went into his backswing, playing mate Mike Pyle of the Chicago Bears sneaked behind him and grabbed the pocket of his bermudas. John swung, tore the seat of his breeches and the momentum plummeted him into the water. But he turned around and pulled Pyle in with him, too. When the whales hit, it looked as though somebody pulled the plug.

Mike Pyle has an answer for those who think all that big bonus money is going to spoil the kids. "Dick Butkus got as big a bundle as anyone," he says, "and he's the hungriest man alive."

That Milwaukee baseball situation is a lot more ticklish than people think. Such legal men as Judge Robert Cannon, who heads the players' association (and is also a Milwaukee judge), think the Wisconsin people have a good case for keeping the Braves there. Cannon also recalls the first time he talked to the men who run baseball: "I told them I felt the owners should think first of what's in the best interest of baseball and then what's best for the owners. And the players should think first of what's in the best interest of baseball and then what's best for the players."

Between you'n me, most remarkable team in pro basketball is the Philadelphia 76ers, considering the fact they have only 24 home dates in an 80-game schedule. They have the best winning percentage on the road.

By DICK WOLFF
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

There is a bill under consideration in the U.S. Senate that actually recognizes the value of fish and wildlife recreation and resources. Of course, there is legislation already on the books which does so, but this one is particularly welcome because it concerns highway construction.

There is only one thing wrong with it. It is about five years late. For the Beaverkill, that is.

If you recall the case—and there is hardly a true trout fisherman in the East, if not the country, who doesn't—it involved highway improvements in the vicinity of the Beaverkill which is roughly 100 miles northwest of New York City. Two plans were offered. One called for bridges—I think it was seven—across the Beaverkill. The other would not have affected the stream, but its cost was greater. Guess which one was adopted.

The engineers decided on the bridges, and they are now in the process of destroying a river which is recognized as the birthplace of fly fishing in America. As any angler knows, once a river has been tampered with, it is never quite the same again.

It's a shame, too, because the Beaverkill was everything they said it was. I recall vividly one June evening years back when I tied on a wet Iron Blue Dunn and cast a long line toward the opposite bank. In a relatively short time I took, and released, a dozen eye-popping trout from 14 to 22 inches in length. It was easily one of the most enjoyable angling experiences of my life.

Others also recall the Beaverkill with fondness; indeed, thousands of them protested the highway construction. But to no avail. Now the above-mentioned legislation, S1974, would require that plans for any highway subsidized by federal funds be submitted to the secretary of the interior to ascertain if such construction is detrimental to fish and wildlife recreation and resources. It's about time!

Matson's a Two-Sport Man Now

By SANDY PADWE

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. —(NEA)—There is only one Sullivan Award and there is only one Bill Bradley and only one Randy Matson.

Both are on the ballot to determine the nation's outstanding amateur athlete for 1965.

Only one can win, but both are legends.

While the legend of Bill Bradley grows with a Rhodes Scholarship at Oxford University, the legend of Randy Matson grows in another way—Bill Bradley's way—on the basketball court.

Matson, after two years of inactivity as a basketball player, has earned a starting forward position for Texas A&M this winter, averaging nine points and 11 rebounds per game.

"It's the first time I've played since high school," Randy said, "and it still feels a bit strange."

Matson, the world's record-holder for the shot put, has the perfect dimensions (6-6, 240 pounds) for basketball.

"I've lost 20 pounds," Randy said, "and I'm just hoping it won't affect me when I start training in March."

"But I'm enjoying basketball a lot and I think in the long run it's going to help me as a shot putter because it will increase my agility and speed.

"I really had to work to get in shape for basketball. It was especially tough on my ankles and feet because there is so much more running to build up your endurance and wind."

Outside of rustiness, Randy's biggest problem in basketball has been the mental preparation for games.

"It's a little harder than when I'm training by myself. Then I'm my own boss. In basketball, you have to get used to being part of a team, but the guys understand this and they've really helped me."

"Basketball has been a welcome break. I had two years of very tough competition in track. Now I won't begin track again until March. I may compete in a few indoor

For Army's Young Basketball Coach, 'It'll Be Tougher to Lose Than Win'

By DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WEST POINT, N.Y.—(NEA)—Bob Knight knows enough about basketball to tell his Army players what to do and how to do it in any given situation.

That's on the court. Off the court, what Knight knows about being a college basketball coach, relatively speaking, wouldn't plug a referee's whistle.

Bob Knight is barely 25 years old, which makes him the youngest major college coach in the country.

By his own admission, Knight is just now learning all those pat answers college coaches need or use in facing the press and alumni.

"I can't wait for somebody to ask me if I'm looking ahead to the Navy game," he said, "so I can say, 'We play 'em one at a time.'"

If even coaching cliches need learning, where does Knight stand on such important off-court matters as recruiting, scouting, scheduling and handling players?

"He's learning," says Ohio State's Fred Taylor, for whom Knight played during the 1960-62 Jerry Lucas era. "And very quickly, too."

"I'll have to," Knight laughed, "or I'll be back at Cuyahoga Falls." Which is the Ohio high school team he coached one year before joining the Army staff last year as freshman coach under Taylor (Tates) Locke.

When Locke, who is only 27, resigned last year to coach at Miami of Ohio, Knight was the natural successor in this Army basketball coaching youth movement.

Knight's intense drive, his basketball background and his studious approach to the game impressed the right people.

"I'm very fortunate to have played for Fred Taylor," Knight said. "Not only did I learn basketball from him, but through him I got to meet the geniuses of this game."

"I'm in constant contact with both Fred and Clair Bee. As far as I'm concerned, these are two of the greatest basketball minds ever."

And Joe Lapchick occasionally checks in on Knight to see how he's doing.

"With these fellas looking over my shoulder, it will be tougher to lose than win," Knight said. "Something's bound to rub off."

"I know this is my challenge, but you just don't close your ears when a man like Clair Bee tells you something. I don't care how old you are."

His predecessor, Locke, fielded winning teams in his two years at Army, and twice finished third in the National Invitational Tournament. Army was 21-8 in 1964-65, the winningest season in its history.

Knight's bunch, paced by 6-6 center Mike Sillman, is off to a good start against a very tough schedule. Does the young coach foresee Army's third straight NIT appearance?

"We just play 'em one at a time," he beamed.

Deep powder skiing, a trademark of the sport in Colorado, should be attempted only by the accomplished skiers.

One must first have mastered the fundamentals of skiing on packed snow. The correct techniques are transferable, but because the deeper snow offers more resistance, there is exaggeration of the motions used in turning.

First, you should use deep powder skis—or soft, flexible ones.

More than ever, the elements of parallel skiing help you cut easier through the snow and maintain balance. The upper body should be a little behind the boot rather than leaning over the boot as in skiing on packed snow.

It is a floating action. You must ski slower and smoother. Any sudden movement or changing weight from one ski to another will plunge you deeper into the snow. The up and down motion is heavily stressed, but at the same time the skis are equally weighted generally to help you ride the surface easier. The skis cut through the snow as if they're a single board.

And you're on your way to one of the greatest pleasures in sport.

Cutting a path through deep powder snow, such as found in the Rocky Mountain areas, makes one of the most scenic pictures in the sport of skiing. Anderl Molterer leads the way.

Stout-Hearted Horse

By TOM CULLEN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

LONDON—(NEA)—Only Ireland can produce a two-bottle horse that is also the greatest steeplechaser of the century.

As part of his daily diet, Arkle, the wonder horse, swigs two bottles of that famous dark brown stout with the tan head on it which is made from the waters of the River Liffey.

But Arkle's liquor-loving habits may land him in trouble with turf authorities.

A Jockey Club official explains, "Our Rule 165 states that a horse may not have anything but normal nutriment. Stout, we suppose, is not normal."

Tom Dreaper, Arkle's trainer, is taking no chances. Dreaper now cuts off the chaser's liquor ration four days before a race.

THIRST FOR VICTORY—Irish steeplechaser Arkle, with Pat Taaffe up, clears the last hedge en route to his reward—a ration of stout.

To make up for lost time, however, Arkle is given a double ration of stout when he wins.

And win Arkle does, despite the fact that he runs with top weight.

Aside from boosting the Irish ego, Arkle is dragging thousands of punters from their television sets to the tracks for the privilege of seeing the champion perform in the flesh.

Britons who normally don't bet on horses have a flutter on Arkle when he runs.

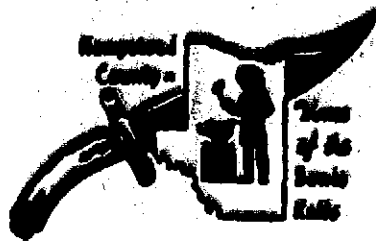

"You can't bet on Arkle in the normal sense because of the odds," a punter explains. "What you do is lend your bookmaker $100 for 15 minutes, and when you get it back your margin of profit is much higher than what you would get at the bank."

"I don't have to ride him in any special way," says jockey Pat Taaffe, who has ridden Arkle 21 times.

"In fact, I usually have to restrain him at the start to stop him from rushing ahead of the field."

There's that stout waiting at the end, you know.

To Study The South
The South has an identity of its own, compounded of unique traditions, difficult trials and tribulations, complex social problems, bountiful natural assets, and awesome opportunities.

The one thing the South has lacked throughout its history is a sense of understanding on the part of non-Southerners. Much, sometimes we think too much, has been written about the South but not all of it has been factual or fair. Writers, including a number of Southerners themselves, have described the what, when, where and how of Southern developments - good and bad - without telling why. It is doubtful that many of them have really known why Southerners have acted as they have - and as they do.

Southerners should welcome, therefore, any conscientious effort directed at building a better understanding of the region, among Southerners as well as among non-Southerners. Just such an effort is gathering momentum at Duke University, where a Center for Southern Studies will begin its work this fall. Duke's energetic and imaginative president, Dr. Douglas M. Knight, describes the role of the new facility in these words: "The South and its culture have long been topics of interest to scholars in the social sciences and humanities. Now, with the creation of the Center for Southern Studies, research in this area can be expanded and developed."

We commend Duke University for its initiative and its manifest interest in the South. The Center for Southern Studies is not to be a launching pad for "action" programs, but it can serve both the region and the nation by fostering balanced inquiry into a region which is still a stumbling giant. — Columbia (S.C.) Pushing The Wage Floor Up Proposals to increase minimum wages and extend minimum-wage coverage were among matters left over at the last session of Congress. Labor Secretary Wirtz says the Administration will give the subject high priority at the forthcoming congressional session.

Mr. Wirtz doesn't indicate how much increase will be sought over the present minimum which is $1.25 an hour. The Administration probably won't go along with the demand of organized labor that the wage floor be fixed at $2 an hour. One thing is evident. The Administration can't ask for a substantial increase in the minimum wage without going counter to its policy as expressed in its own wage-price guidelines.

At a time when every one is concerned deeply about inflationary pressures on the economy, there is a further consideration that must be weighed when an increase in the minimum wage is proposed. That is the escalating effect that such a step would have on wages in general. The unions are not likely to stand still when they see the wage floor raised without demanding a proportionate increase when they bargain with employers. And differential between skilled and unskilled labor is bound to be maintained and it can't be reduced by anything Government is able to do.

The higher the minimum wage, the higher bargained wage rates are bound to be. Raising the wage floor is incompatible with Administration admonitions against inflationary policies by labor and management. — Roanoke (Va.) Times

Peace Moves Make Red China Rage

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Red China's leadership is reacting with rage to American and Soviet diplomatic maneuvers, as if gripped by a major peace scare.

Evidently Peking dismisses as empty propaganda the suggestions from Soviet bloc Communists that if the United States intensifies the war in Viet Nam, the Soviet Union will introduce significant escalation of its own.

Peking has weighed the evidence and expressed the conviction that Soviet words are not to be trusted.

By implication, Red China accused Moscow of colluding with the Americans in a search for a road to negotiations.

The timing of a recent Peking blast reflects the Red Chinese leadership's attitude toward Soviet moves.

On the day that Alexander N. Shelepin and his delegation arrived in Peking en route to Hanoi, People's Daily printed a long tirade against the United States and its motives in continuing a pause in the bombing of North Viet Nam.

When there was a bombing pause last May, it recalled, there were "murmurs from among the modern revisionists"—meaning the Soviet leaders—that the suspension was too short and "the trick had not been very well played."

Now, it continued, "the Johnson administration appears to be taking the advice of these people."

Evidently "these people" included not only advisers in Washington, but those same "modern revisionists."

The paper, which is the official voice of the Chinese Communist party, then presented this as evidence against the Russians:

"In pursuing its 'peace talks' hoax, the Johnson administration places special hopes on the Khrushchev revisionists and their followers. It began the 'pause in bombing' on Dec. 24, and on the same day its ambassador in Moscow, Foy D. Kohler, called on Soviet Vice Foreign Minister V.V. Kuznetsov."

"Three days later, it published its '14-point' proposition"—the American terms for peace talks with North Viet Nam.

"The next day the Soviet Union announced that a delegation headed by Shelepin would visit Viet Nam. Then on Dec. 29, the senior U.S. officials began their travels overseas as salesmen for the 'peace talks' scheme. On the same day, Kohler called on Nikolay V. Podgorny, president of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R."

The paper quoted comments abroad to show that the Soviet and American actions might have "common features."

That "before taking the decision that Shelepin should visit Hanoi, the Soviet Union obviously was tipped off in one form or another by the United States about the pause in its bombing."

There were evidences of heavy pressure on North Viet Nam's Communist leadership from both Moscow and Peking. Comments from Hanoi welcome Soviet aid but at the same time could mean that if no road to Chinese aid, too. Still, there has been less emphasis on China in there has been in the past, and possibly Peking is worried about the Soviet delegation.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey was scheduled to address a Women's National Press Club welcome - to - Congress dinner Thursday night.

But Humphrey, who went to New Delhi this week to attend the funeral of Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri, never showed up.

At the last minute, some of his colleagues were invited to pinch-hit.

With a big question mark placed at Humphrey's headtable seat, they spoke on the topic: "Whatever happened to Hubert Humphrey?"

WASHINGTON (AP) — Few people would have addressed the President of the United States that way, but 5-year-old Lori Wagner of Milwaukee showed no inhibitions.

"Howdy, partner," she greeted President Johnson as she entered the chief executive's office Thursday on crutches and leg braces.

"Howdy," snapped back Johnson.

A victim of a serious spinal defect since birth, Lori is the 1966 March of Dimes poster girl. When she called on the President to promote the annual fund-raising drive, she serenaded him with a bit of "Hello, Lyndon"—the President's 1964 campaign song based on the Broadway musical "Hello, Dolly."

"Isn't she a star?" asked the President after kissing Lori on the cheek.

ANGOLA, La. (AP) — Gov. John McKeithen paid a surprise visit to the Louisiana State Prison for a man-to-man talk with the prisoners. He got a welcome reception.

"If you don't make good records here, we can't turn you out," he said. "If we turned all of you out, they would put all of us in. Keep up the good work."

The inmates laughed and later burst into applause when McKeithen told them Thursday:

"If you get out, for God's sake, don't do anything to get back. All of you have got somebody back home who is grieving his heart out because you are here. We're counting on you, and you can count on us."

NEW DELHI (AP) — The next prime minister of India will be chosen at a meeting next Wednesday of the ruling Congress party's members in Parliament.

The date for the meeting was decided today by the party's working committee. A spokesman said it was hoped the party members could agree on a candidate before then.

The leading contender is Gulzari Lal Nanda, home minister in Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri's Cabinet. As the senior member of the Cabinet, he became caretaker prime minister Tuesday when Shastri died in Tashkent.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union charged today that the United States has increased suspicious military activity in the Black Sea.

The charge in the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda was based on the reported entry of two U.S. Navy ships into the Black Sea on Monday and the crash last month of a U.S. Air Force B57 into the sea, which is bordered on three sides by the Soviet Union, Romania and Bulgaria.

R. C. Weaver Knows What He Wants

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY

WASHINGTON (AP) — A man with a nightmare vision of people strangling in thickly populated areas—has a chance now to prevent his bad dream from coming true.

He is Robert Clifton Weaver, 58, Negro, intellectual (Harvard B.S., M.A. and Ph.D.) and a man who knows exactly what he wants.

A few weeks ago a newsman asked Weaver, the government's housing and home finance administrator, whether he would like to be chosen the first secretary of housing and urban development, a new Cabinet post created by Congress last year.

Without hesitation, Weaver violated the immemorial, unwritten rule which decrees that a "man" acting for high office shall say he has no such ambition but will serve if drafted.

"Yes," Weaver said.

Rusk, Viet Nam Leaders Talk of Peace Plan

By THOMAS A. REEDY

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk launched a whirlwind round of talks with South Viet Nam's top leaders today, reportedly to assure them President Johnson's peace efforts will not undercut the Saigon regime.

Rusk, accompanied by special presidential envoy W. Averell Harriman, met briefly with Chief of State Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu and then talked for an hour with Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and Foreign Minister Tran Van Do.

"We had very interesting talks. We are going to see each other again tonight," Rusk told newsmen, apparently referring to his dinner engagement with Ky.

He declined to say what subjects were discussed at the meetings, but diplomatic sources said he came here to tell Ky that Johnson's diplomatic moves on ending the war in Viet Nam would not pull the rug from under Ky's regime.

For 333 Members of Whitfield Masonic Lodge Friday Night Was a Very Happy Occasion

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

For the 333 members of Whitfield Masonic Lodge No. 239 last night was a happy occasion, for their building at 320 South Main has been paid for, and a special celebration was held with Arkansas Supreme Court Justice Edward McFaddin bringing the address.

Using historical material compiled by the late Capt. C. A. Birdwell, a Past Grand Master of Arkansas and a pioneer of Hope, the speaker traced the history of the Whitfield Lodge from 1870 to 1916. From that time until the present the history of the Lodge was prepared by Harry Shiver, a Past Master.

Justice McFaddin lent his own special touch to the presentation of the material to the enjoyment of all who heard him.

Whitfield Lodge No. 239, Free and Accepted Masons, was named in honor of the Past Grand Master E. B. Whitfield of Camden, a distinguished citizen and Mason. In later years his son, who was named for him, moved to Hope and became a member of the Lodge.

The charter was granted by the Grand Lodge of Arkansas on November 22, 1870, and was numbered 239. As named in the charter, the first officers of Whitfield Lodge were: Arthur Gibson, Worshipful Master; John F. Coffee, Senior Warden; and W. D. Vance, Junior Warden.

The Lodge was organized about 2½ years before the railroad reached Hope. At first, the meetings were held in a school building near Hope. As soon as an upper room became available, the Lodge moved its meeting place to Hope. Through the years the Lodge Hall has been set up in various places. Whitfield Lodge suffered a loss by fire in the late 1800's and it reached a financial low during the depression of the 1930's.

There were high points, too, such as much Masonic activity during World War I with many receiving degrees.

The need for a home for the Lodge was always before the members, and as it grew and prospered, the Lodge wanted a meeting place of its own even more. In the early 1950's a building committee composed of Roy Anderson, Harry W. Shiver, and Dr. F. D. Henry investigated several sites including the former Josephine Hospital. They learned that the purchase price suited them and the possibilities of using the upper floor for a Lodge with a potential income from the lower portion of the property made it attractive.

G. T. Cannon, the master in 1953, appointed a building committee composed of Ray Garber, Ben D. Edwards, Guy M. Grigg, Harry W. Shiver, and Earl O'Neal, and a finance committee consisting of Harry W. Shiver, Roy Anderson, Franklin Horton, Syd McMath & George Peck to handle the remodeling and the financing of their new home.

The spacious Lodge room, adequate facilities, and sound financing comprise a memorial to their efforts.

The Trustees of the building are Vincent Foster, Lyle Brown, Roy Anderson, Harry W. Shiver, together with the current three principal officers of the Lodge, Raymond Byers, W. M., Robert Parham, S. W., and Philip Manus, J. W.

Others were Dennis Ramsey who had 19 points and Larry May who sank for 6. Bobby McGill and Eddie Aslin had 5 apiece while Stan Parris had 2.

In individual rebounding for Hope Ramsey and Ingram had 13 apiece while Aslin grabbed 11, and May & Parris and McGill pulled down 6 each.

In the Junior Boys game Hope was swamped, 61-25 by the Magnolia Panther Cubs who remain undefeated this season.

Although the Bobkittens fought back and forth with Magnolia for the lead through the first quarter and a half, they offered little resistance during the final half. Unable to score during the last two periods they were forced to watch the dream of an upset fail completely out of view shortly after halftime.

Rickey Futman sacked for 11 points and team high honors.

Both Hope teams are on the road again tonight as they take on Arkadelphia there. The Bobcats could even their district record up at 2-2 with a win over the highly praised Badgers, but things won't come easily for the Cats playing the district dark-horse on its own court.

Combining inspired defensive play and a lot of rebounding, the Bobcats ran past the Magnolia Panthers, 64-50, as they finally found the winning trail for their first conference victory of the season last night.

Hope jumped to the early 11 point lead and never trailed the rest of the game. There were a few anxious moments but the points were there when they were needed most.

Neither team had an especially good night percentage wise in the shooting category but the Cats completely dominated the boards. Hope's rebounding advantage was certainly one of the deciding factors in the game since the Bobcats pulled down 60 rebounds compared to only 31 for the Panthers.

The aggressive Hope defense took advantage of every possible opportunity through the first period to mount an impressive 19-8 lead by the end of the quarter.

But the first four minutes of the second stanza were all Magnolia's as the Panthers outscored the visitors 11-3 and pulled to within 3 points of the Cats.

By the end of the half though Hope had subdued the come from behind surge of Magnolia to a certain extent and the Bobcats boasted a 32-27 margin through intermission.

The second half can be summed up by simply saying the Bobcats began to mount another lead which they watched grow little by little in the final two periods. The Cats gradually increased their lead until it reached 14 points, 64-50, at the end of the game.

High point for the contest was Ronnie Ingram with 27 points who not only topped the previous record for any player on the team this year but also broke his own personal performance mark as a Bobcat.

Others were Dennis Ramsey who had 19 points and Larry May who sank for 6. Bobby McGill and Eddie Aslin had 5 apiece while Stan Parris had 2.

In individual rebounding for Hope Ramsey and Ingram had 13 apiece while Aslin grabbed 11, and May & Parris and McGill pulled down 6 each.

In the Junior Boys game Hope was swamped, 61-25 by the Magnolia Panther Cubs who remain undefeated this season.

Although the Bobkittens fought back and forth with Magnolia for the lead through the first quarter and a half, they offered little resistance during the final half. Unable to score during the last two periods they were forced to watch the dream of an upset fail completely out of view shortly after halftime.

Rickey Futman sacked for 11 points and team high honors.
